- 用词和语法准确>过分追求难度 - LR/GRA

Outer space and stars

Have you ever learnt anything about space and the stars when you were at school?

- Yes, I've been taught some basic astronomy in geography lessons during high school, like the Earth's orbit and rotation.
- Our teachers brought telescopes to the classrooms for us to do a little bit of an experiment.
- But later on in college, my major had nothing to do with the study of the galaxy.

Would you like to find out more about space and the stars?

- For sure, I've been checking out YouTube channels and documentaries for some educational content.
- However, as I dig deeper, I find out what I have known is only the tip of the iceberg.
- The real astronomy is way trickier than I thought.

Geography

How do you like geography?

- I can't say that it's something I'm really into, but it is a subject I'm somewhat interested in.
- Recently, I've been checking out educational content on YouTube channels and documentaries.
- As I dig deeper, I'm discovering that what I previously knew is only the tip of the iceberg. The real geography is way trickier than I had thought.

Do you think geography is useful?

- Undoubtedly, geography is a challenging but rewarding subject.
- I still remember what I learned in high school, including physical geography topics like climate and ocean currents, as well as human geography topics such as urbanisation.
- They all come in really handy in daily life.

Spending time by yourself

What did you do last time you were by yourself?

- Last weekend, I stayed at home and spent a couple of hours cleaning my room and tidying up my space.
- It wasn't just about getting rid of mess. Doing that actually helped me feel more refreshed and in control of my week.
- I guess it's one of those things where when your surroundings are clear, your mind feels clearer too.

How do you usually spend your time by yourself?

- It depends, but usually I do two things.
- First, I like to wind down by watching YouTube videos. Not mindlessly scrolling, but more like finding one or two good channels, which helps me take in new perspectives and slowly get my thoughts in order.
- Second, if the weather's nice, I'll go out for a short walk in the park. It's quiet and slow-paced, and it just feels like hitting reset after a packed day.

Spare time

What do you usually do in your spare time?

- In most cases, I like to unwind by watching videos on YouTube. I usually scroll through my phone in my cozy bed, checking out the vlogs or language tips posted by my favourite YouTubers. Their content helps me consolidate what I learn in class.
- Apart from that, I also enjoy going for a walk in the park just a stone's throw away from my apartment. It's a great way to recharge, especially after a hectic day.

Would you like to have more free time in the future?

- Definitely.
- Having more free time would let me slow down, do things I actually enjoy, and stop feeling like I'm always catching up.
- Right now, my schedule is so tight that even doing nothing feels like a treat.

Being busy

Why are you busy?

- It's a mix of academic pressure and part-time work.
- I'm trying to balance classes, assignments, and sometimes part-time job tasks.
- Plus, I also want to make time for family and friends, so everything together keeps me juggling multiple things at once.

Are you busier now than when you were a child?

- Absolutely. Back then, my biggest concern was finishing my homework and watching cartoons.
- But now, my agenda is packed with classes, assignments, and part-time work. Sometimes I even feel like I'm chained to the desk from morning till night.
- This shift is probably because I'm working hard to climb the social ladder, and that just something I have to deal with.

Staying up

What do you do when you stay up late?

- It depends on my mood.
- If I feel like I wasn't productive during the day and want to compensate a little, I'll cross one or two things off my to-do list.
- But if I've been working too hard, I might just watch TikTok or TV shows until the wee hours of the night to help me unwind.

What does it feel like the next morning if you stay up late?

- It depends.
- If I don't have anything urgent in the morning, I usually don't rush out of bed after a late night.
- But when I do have to wake up early, burning the candle at both ends really leaves me feeling groggy and less alert the next day.

Writing

What do you like to write? Why?

- If I do write something, it's usually for social media.
- Off the top of my head, I'd say I like sharing my learning takeaways or travel tips, especially when I've collected some useful resources or ideas.
- I guess I enjoy putting things into words, just turning what I've experienced into something helpful or inspiring for others.

Do you prefer typing or handwriting when you are writing?

- It really depends.
- If I'm writing text-heavy content like an email or essay, I prefer typing. It's quicker and easier to revise.
- But for note-taking or visual planning, I prefer handwriting, especially using apps like Notability or just paper, where I can draw mind maps and get my thoughts in order.

Plan / Schedule

Do you like making plans?

- Yes, I do, especially when I have a lot on my plate.
- Making plans helps me stay organised and prevents me from forgetting important things.
- I'm not super strict about following every step, but I feel more in control when I at least have a basic outline.

What are the benefits of making plans?

- Making plans gives me a clear roadmap and helps me stay on top of things.
- With a plan in place, I know exactly what I need to do and when, which naturally reduces my anxiety.
- On the flip side, if I don't have a plan, I tend to feel overwhelmed, especially when deadlines pile up.

Chocolate

What's your favourite flavour of chocolate?

- I have strong cravings for the classic flavour of Ferrero Rocher. I mean, the one with the golden wrapper.
- It's a delicious combination of crispy wafers, hazelnut pieces, and a smooth chocolate filling.
- Buying a pack of it is such a way to treat myself!

Do you think it is good to use chocolate as gifts to others?

- For sure, I mean, who doesn't love chocolate?
- Not only is it delicious, but it often comes in beautifully designed packaging with creative patterns and even golden bowties.
- So with the flavour and the packages, it's always a good idea to please someone by giving them chocolate.

Snacks

When do you usually eat snacks now?

- Usually in the afternoon, between lunch and dinner.
- Especially since I usually [work from home/study in my dormitory], I always keep something like a bar of chocolate or a bag of chips within my reach.
- I know it sounds like an excuse, but honestly, a little hit of dopamine really helps me push through procrastination.

What snacks do you like to eat?

- I think I prefer savoury snacks, especially ones that have both salty and sweet flavours, ideally with a bit of spice.
- So I usually go for things like traditional Chinese snacks like niurougan, which is dried beef jerky, or latiao, which are spicy gluten sticks.
- When I'm craving something with a strong flavour, they're definitely my go-to.

Housework and cooking

Do you do some cooking or help your family cook at home now?

- Not really. I'm either too tired or short on time, so I usually grab a quick meal or just reheat leftovers.
- But when I go home during holidays, I help my parents cook, usually cutting veggies or doing small prep tasks in the kitchen.

What housework do you like or dislike doing?

- I actually like organising stuff, which is weirdly satisfying, especially when I clean out a messy drawer.
- But I really dislike scrubbing the bathroom.
- It's just... gross, no matter how clean it ends up looking.

List

Do you make a list when you shop?

- Yes, always. Otherwise I'll forget things.
- I usually keep separate lists for veggies, snacks, and daily items.
- Whenever I notice something missing at home, I just pop it on the list, so I'll have everything ready for my next grocery run.

Do you prefer to make a list on paper or your phone?

- Definitely on my phone.
- I use an app that lets me sync across devices, so I can access my list from my phone, iPad, or laptop.
- It's way more convenient than paper. I'd hate to carry a notebook around just for a shopping list.

Singing

Have you ever learnt how to sing?

- Yes, but not professionally. I took a short course during the pandemic when I had more free time.
- Even though it only lasted for three months, it helped me improve my skills and boost my confidence, so I'm glad I gave it a shot.

Do you think singing can bring happiness to people?

- Absolutely. Especially songs with a lively beat, which can really lift people's spirits.
- There's a duo in China called Phoenix Legend. Whenever people sing along, the vibe becomes so high-energy and fun. It's honestly exhilarating.

Puzzles

Did you do puzzles in your childhood?

- Yes, I did. I used to play with jigsaw puzzles when I was a kid.
- To be honest, I wasn't crazy about them. The reason is probably that I was more into building blocks, which allow me to use my hands to create something tangible in a 3D space, rather than just matching pieces on a flat surface, which is less engaging for a kid.

Do you like doing word puzzles or number puzzles? Which one is more difficult for you?

- I'm definitely more into word puzzles, like crosswords or vocabulary games.
- Since I'm quite confident with language, they feel more enjoyable and are actually a fun way to consolidate what I've learned.
- Number puzzles aren't necessarily hard for me, but they're just not my thing. I guess I don't find them as engaging.

Praise/encouragement

How do you feel when you are praised?

- Of course I feel over the moon, but to be honest, I also feel a bit shy.
- In Chinese culture, we tend to be more modest, so I'm not really used to receiving compliments.
- But deep down, it definitely boosts my confidence.

Do you think parents should often praise and encourage their children?

- Yes, absolutely.
- Positive feedback can help kids build self-esteem and feel more motivated.
- But I do think some Chinese parents tend to hold back on praise, fearing it might make the child arrogant.
- Still, a few genuine words of encouragement can go a long way.

Patience

How do you feel when you have to do something for a long time?

- It depends.
- If I'm confident and feel like I'm on the right track, I can sit tight and I'm happy to go with the flow.
- But if I'm unsure whether I'm doing the right thing, I start to second-guess myself, and it gets frustrating.

Are you more patient now than when you were a child?

- Definitely. I find it easier to calm down and stay focused than I did when I was little.
- I've learned to go at my own pace, and I know that good things take time, so I'm less likely to get worked up when things move slowly.

Saying 'thank you'

Have you ever sent a thank-you card to others?

- I used to send thank-you cards to teachers and family when I was younger.
- Now I usually just send a message, but I do miss the feeling of handwritten cards.
- If someone really means a lot to me, I'll still write one cuz it feels more personal and heartfelt.

On what occasions do you say "thank you"?

- Well, I say it a lot in both formal and casual settings. In daily life, I'd thank my barista for handing over my coffee, or my friend who goes the extra mile to help me.
- In more serious situations, like after receiving help during a group project, I might say thank you from the bottom of my heart. In my view, gratitude is a simple but powerful way to maintain relationships.

Machine

What is your favourite machine in your home?

- I'd say my favourite is definitely my robot vacuum cleaner.
- It saves me a lot of time and effort. I just press a button, and it sweeps the whole house automatically. Every inch ends up spotless.
- Honestly, it's been a real lifesaver.

Do you read the instructions before using a machine?

- Not really. I usually like to explore a little on my own first, just pressing buttons and seeing what happens.
- But if something's unclear or I get stuck, I'll definitely check the instructions.
- It's just not my habit to read them from the start.

Flowers

Do you know anyone who loves flowers?

- Yes, my grandmom is really into flowers.
- She always keeps fresh flowers on the dining table, and she even learned how to make simple flower arrangements by herself.
- On weekends, she enjoys going to flower markets, where she carefully selects blooms that match her mood or the season.

Are there a lot of flowers where you live?

- I wouldn't say a lot, but you can always see seasonal flowers in parks or by the roadside.
- Around spring, you'll find tulips or cherry blossoms here and there
- and during special occasions or festivals, like Valentine's Day or Mother's Day, it's common to see wrapped bouquets of roses or carnations sold on the street.

Memory

Are you good at memorising things?

- Yeah, I'd say it's a piece of cake for me, as I have a memory like an elephant, especially when it comes to things I learn in school.
- I guess I just have a knack for taking in a lot of information.
- Plus, I sometimes use tricks like creating weird associations in my brain to help memorise things more easily.

How do you remember important things?

- I'd say I mostly rely on my phone. It's basically my personal memory bank now.
- It's super convenient to set up calendars, reminders, or jot down quick notes, and everything is just within reach.
- So checking my schedule and notes has kind of become a daily habit for me.

Weather

Do you prefer dry or wet weather?

- Honestly, neither.
- Dry weather makes my skin feel tight, so I always need to put on moisturiser after a shower.
- But wet weather can be humid and uncomfortable, especially when it's chilly. It's bad for the joints too. I know many people suffer from chronic knee pain when it's damp.

What do you think are the effects of climate change in recent years?

- Global temperatures are rising, and that's causing the melting of ice caps and a rise in sea level.
- We're also seeing more extreme weather events, like hurricanes, floods, and droughts, which is honestly quite scary.

Library

What do you usually do in the library?

- I usually do two things there.
- Whenever I need to complete an assignment, I find a quiet spot in the library and place my laptop on my lap.
- Besides, though our school provide electronic resources and I can find most of the e-book versions of my reference books online, there are times when they are not available, so I need to go to the library to borrow them.

Did you go to the library when you were a kid?

- When I was in primary school, I didn't go to the library frequently because my school didn't have one.
- Whenever I needed to read something, my mom would take me to the bookstore.
- However, in high school, we had compulsory reading hours every Friday, so I went to the library once a week.

Public transportation

What kind of public transportation do you usually take?

- I usually take the subway or bus since they're more budget-friendly.
- But if I'm going grocery shopping and have a lot to carry, I'll sometimes take a taxi because it saves time and helps me avoid the hassle of transferring between buses.
- However, taxis are beyond my budget if I take them too often, so I only use them occasionally.

Will there be more people taking public transportation in the future?

- I think so. With urban traffic getting worse and the rise of environmental awareness, public transport will probably become the go-to option for many.
- It's also more sustainable and affordable compared to private cars.
- So yes, I believe we'll see more people relying on buses and subways in the years to come.

Small business

Do you know many small businesses where you live?

- Yes, especially around my university campus, where students often gather.
- I usually have lunch at mom-and-pop restaurants just a stone's throw away from our uni gate.
- There are also people who do food booths and pop-up retails on the weekends.

Have you ever thought about starting your own business?

- It depends on the form of the business.
- If it's online, I'd definitely give freelancing a try, maybe be an online English teacher and run a small TikTok or website.
- But if it's offline, like running a physical store, I really have no clue where to begin.

Jewellery

What type of Jewellery do you like?

- I'm not really into Jewellery, but if I had to choose, I'd probably go for something traditional or meaningful, like a golden "zhuan yun zhu", which is a type of lucky charm bead in Chinese culture.
- They're popular in China and people wear them to ward off bad luck and attract good fortune.

Why do you think some people wear a piece of Jewellery for a long time?

- I suppose people wear a piece of jewellery for a long time for various reasons.
- Maybe it holds sentimental value, like it can be a cherished gift from their loved ones.
- In some Chinese families, people also wear certain pieces based on traditional beliefs, for example, a fengshui master might say a certain item brings luck or balances energy.

Birthday

What did you do on your birthday when you were young?

- Back when I was a student, my birthday usually fell on a school day, and sometimes exams were just around the corner, so things could get a bit hectic.
- But my parents would still get me a birthday cake and sing the song, nothing over the top, but it always put a smile on my face.

Do you think it is important for you to celebrate your birthday?

- Yes, I do think it matters, not in a grand way, but as a moment to slow down and think.
- For me, it's a chance to reflect on where I am in life, what I've achieved, and where I want to go next.
- In addition, it's also a time to be grateful and to reconnect with my loved ones.

Names

How would you choose names for your next generation?

- To be honest, I'd choose a name that's easy to pronounce both in Chinese pinyin and in English. That way, my child wouldn't need an extra English name just to make it easier for others to pronounce.
- I know it's a kind of cultural compromise, but it helps preserve their identity and makes their life easier.
- Hopefully, more Chinese people will feel proud to use their real Chinese names in an English-speaking world.

Does anyone in your family have the same name as you?

- No. In Chinese culture, we avoid sharing names with elders, partly out of respect, and partly for distinction.
- That said, many families do follow a tradition where members of the same generation share the same first character of their given name.

Holidays

Which public holiday do you like best?

- Spring festival, for sure.
- The most important reason is that it's a day for families to reunite. Especially these days, I have to leave my hometown for [college/work], so I really value my days with family.
- Apart from that, another reason is that the Spring festival is the longest holiday in China so I can unwind.

Do you prefer a leisurely or a busy holiday?

- Definitely a leisurely one.
- Holidays are rare chances for me to take it slow, escape reality, and enjoy some peace and quiet.
- A busy trip sounds exciting, but sometimes I'd rather stay in, sleep in, and fully recharge before jumping back into my everyday routine.

Text messages

How often do you send text messages?

- I send text messages pretty much every day.
- Not every hour, but I do check my phone every couple of hours. If I don't, I start feeling left out or anxious.
- I guess that's why I'm kind of glued to my phone, just to stay in the loop.

Do you reply to messages as soon as you receive them?

- It depends.
- If it's something urgent or [school/work]-related, I usually reply straight away.
- But if I'm tired or just not in the mood, I might leave it for later.
- I try not to be rude, but sometimes I just need a break from constant notifications.

Internet

When did you start using social media?

- That was when I was in middle school because my parents were strict about not letting me have a phone until then.
- But when I finally got my hands on my very first smartphone, I immediately signed up for a bunch of platforms like WeChat, Weibo, and so on.

What would you do without the internet?

- It's really hard to imagine, to be frank.
- My life would certainly be slower-paced. I'd probably spend more time on offline hobbies such as reading books or practising a musical instrument.
- Apart from that, I might want to go to the picturesque countryside to escape the hustle and bustle of fast-paced city life.
